would have been short of provisions but for a visit, February 18, to Pitcairn. Shortly after the ship came to anchor off the island the merchants exchange, board of trade and chamber of commerce of Pitcairn loaded themselves into canoes and rowed out to the Fuller.

Captain Haskell opened the ship's store chest for their inspection. They selected what clothes they needed and in return sent out to the ship a canoe loaded with vegetables, fruit, chickens and fresh pork. Captain Haskell learned that the ship Carnarvon Bay had been there the day before and the barkentine Amaranth the day before that. The barkentine Makaweli, bound from Newcastle for Mazatlan, was sighted February 17 south of Pitcairn.

The Fuller and the ship Charles E. Moody lay within four miles of each other for two days. The Moody, also from Newcastle, arrived here March 26, and Captain Haskell of the Fuller expressed surprise yesterday that Captain Rasmussen of the Moody had failed to report him. The Fuller was leaning slightly when it came into port, the result of straining in the heavy gales encountered after leaving Newcastle.

ABANDONS LAYSAN, HAS HARD VOYAGE

SCHOONER LUKA ARRIVES WITH VARIED ZOO STOCK ON BOARD—CAPTAIN AND MRS. WILLIAMS GAVE UP THEIR LONELY ABODE—THE LITTLE PACKET HAD CLOSE SHAVE FROM FOUNDERING AT THE ISLAND.

Leaving Laysan Island without a solitary inhabitant, the schooner Luka, Captain Max Schlemmer, this morning arrived in port from that far-away isle with fifty tons of guano, and a menagerie on deck.

Passengers arriving in the "fast and furious" were His Majesty King Charles and his Queen, alias Captain and Mrs. Charlie Williams, who have for several months last past ruled the islet.

All that possesses human intelligence now left on the island are a few mules, ducks and thousands of birds. The Luka, while lying at anchor off Laysan, was nearly gathered to Davy Jones' bosom.

In a series of terrific gales, gales that whipped the sand from the late in clouds and caused the birds hovering over to drop stunned with the force of the gritty rain, tore at the Luka and she lost both anchors and was compelled to put to sea to save herself from being dashed to pieces on the shore.

For eleven days she cruised, afraid to return close in.

One day, just before she ran away, it was thought she was going to be dashed on the cruel beach and the boat was prepared for getting away. Two Japanese refused duty in the boat and Second Mate Chris Wagner sprang in to the breach to bail her, others then following; but they managed to get the schooner out and the boat was not necessary.

Aboard the Luka are five singing Laysan canaries, ten Laysan rabbits, a lot of Laysan chickens and three live Laysan turtles, to say nothing of dried fish, boatswain bird-feathers, and other small curios.

Several of the rabbits increased on the way up. There were five turtles when the Luka left Laysan, but two were killed for food.

Laysan was left on April 1 and the trip to port was stormy and the animals had to be lashed on deck.

"Jimmy" Gerloff is chief mate. Wagner, the second, was formerly a wireless operator here.

This is the first time in many years that Laysan has been left alone, the first time since, years ago, a long mariner was left there, to be found dead, in a chair on the veranda of the cabin, when next people trod the sands, his skeleton keeping ghostly watch and the vacant sockets of the skull staring at a blistering horizon.

A LAND PUZZLE

HOMESTEAD OF ALIEN WHO HAS BEEN REFUSED NATURALIZATION BY JUDGE PARSONS.

Attorney General Hemmaway's opinion has been asked by Land Commissioner Pratt in an interesting case which involves the ownership of certain homestead land on the island of Hawaii. It appears that an alien made his declaration of intention to become a citizen of the United States eight years ago and some two years ago took up certain Government land, under the right of purchase clause.

Last February this same man appeared before Judge Parsons of Hawaii with a petition to be granted his final papers of citizenship. When the matter came up it was found out that when he filed his papers of intention he was not of the required age and on this account he was refused citizenship. The matter now has come up as to whether the man, who has complied with all the terms of the right of purchase clause, now owns the property or not.

S. S. Hilonian docked at 2:45 p. m. today from San Francisco.

RECEPTION COMMITTEE

When asked the reason that the names of the members of the committee which will look after the entertainment of the fleet had not been made public, Secretary Mott-Smith said this morning:

"There have been tentative lists made out, assigning various people to the different committees, but I have been unable to call a meeting of my colleagues, Messrs. Morgan and Smith, and decide on these permanently, on account of a pressure of work in this office. I expected to do this today, but find I must go over to Kaneohe. The matter will be attended to just as soon as possible and that will be very soon indeed."

The case of the Queen's Hospital vs. Bruce Cartwright, trustee, was argued and submitted to the Supreme Court this morning.

The Territorial grand jury will make no report in regard to Jwell, though it is understood that the majority of its members are very much against the recent move of the sheriff.

A FINE EASTER NUMBER.

The Easter number of the Paradise of the Pacific appears today, with a handsome Easter cover, in five colors, designed by Henry B. Christian, who has taken charge of the Art Department of the paper. The Paradise has a number of splendid illustrations and several interesting and timely articles, and the issue is one of much interest, as well as of value to send away as a sample of island art work and illustrations of island scenes.
